Wouter and Sarette are both fully qualified Chartered Accountants with a passion for life. Before deciding to join the Amway family four years ago, they each had extensive experience in the corporate world, with high salaries, and a comfortable standard of living.

‘We were living a life many of our peers envied’, explained Sarette, ‘but the price was high. We had begun our family, but our time with them was limited by the demands imposed by our careers.’

Amway came into their lives when their first daughter was two years old. Sarette was still working full-time, but after only 18 months in the business, she and Wouter had replaced enough of her income to enable her to become a stay-at-home mum. This was excellent timing, as their second child was just a few months old.

Their life since joining Amway has improved tremendously. With a third child welcomed into the family, their financial goals have had to alter, but Amway has given them the options to provide for a secure, exciting future for their children.

“We’ve had to work hard, but the returns we have had as a result of our efforts have been immeasurable. We’re part of the Amway family, able to offer tools with which we can change people’s lives for the better.

Amway has given us the opportunity to watch our children grow while building an exciting business from home. We are living our dream!”
