

MARTIN & TRACY HUTCHINS

Diamonds, Pretoria, South Africa

One simple sentence changed our lives:

“Is what you are doing today, going to give you what you want?”

The answer was simple – no! Owning our own business was giving us a good life, but we always hoped for a great life. We realised that hard work alone was not going to give us the lifestyle we wanted for our family, and when we were introduced to the Amway business, Martin recognised three things instantly;

The opportunity to earn a passive income;
The value of an international income;
The kind of people associated with this business.

We have common goals and dreams and enjoy working together as a team. Family time and travel are what drives us, and we knew there was more to life than working every day.

Owning your own traditional business means stress and very little spare time. This business is the opposite. We enjoy helping others achieve their dreams, whilst at the same time living ours. Having both been divorced before, we have a different outlook on life. Marriage and family are our most important assets. We are indebted to the opportunities afforded to us for personal growth, and the value system of this business, which have been passed on to our children. In particular we are truly grateful to our personal mentors, who have encouraged and believed in us and our dreams.

We are passionate about travel, and are fortunate enough to have visited various countries in recent years, but more importantly we have done it with the association of people in this business who are motivated and positive about life. We firmly believe that travel is one of the greatest educations, and we can't wait to see the world with our children.

You need a dream, courage, hard work and persistence to build this business, but it really is worth it. To have an impact on others' lives and to make a difference is infinitely rewarding. We have discovered a world we want to be part of, and we intend to take as many people as possible with us onwards to a better life.
